

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

- + Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.
- + Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.
- + Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.
- + Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

INTRODUCTION.

In collecting these Records we have traced our Walton ancestors back for more than three hundred years, to the Rev. WILLIAM WALTON and Rev. JOHN MAVERICK, both of Devonshire, England, one a graduate of Cambridge, the other of Oxford. They both came to New England in its earliest days. We have traced our mother's line back through some of the many branches of the OAKES and EATON families to the colonial days of Massachusetts.

Is looking up the ancestors of our grandmother, POLLY PROCTOR, we have commenced with ROBERT, of Concord, and have carried several of the branches together with those of our other ancestors, down to the present time.

Here let us tender our thanks to the contributors for the material furnished us in compiling the work.

J. P. W.

WALTON FAMILY RECORD.

'Tis well to journey back
In days of "auld lang syne,"
And blaze anew the marks,
On our ancestral line.

1. REV. WILLIAM WALTON was born in England about 1598. He entered Emmanuel College, Cambridge, England, February 18, 1617 or '18, and took his degrees in '21 and '25. Became a clergyman; came to America before '35; stopped awhile at Hingham, Mass., and afterwards settled at Marblehead, Mass.

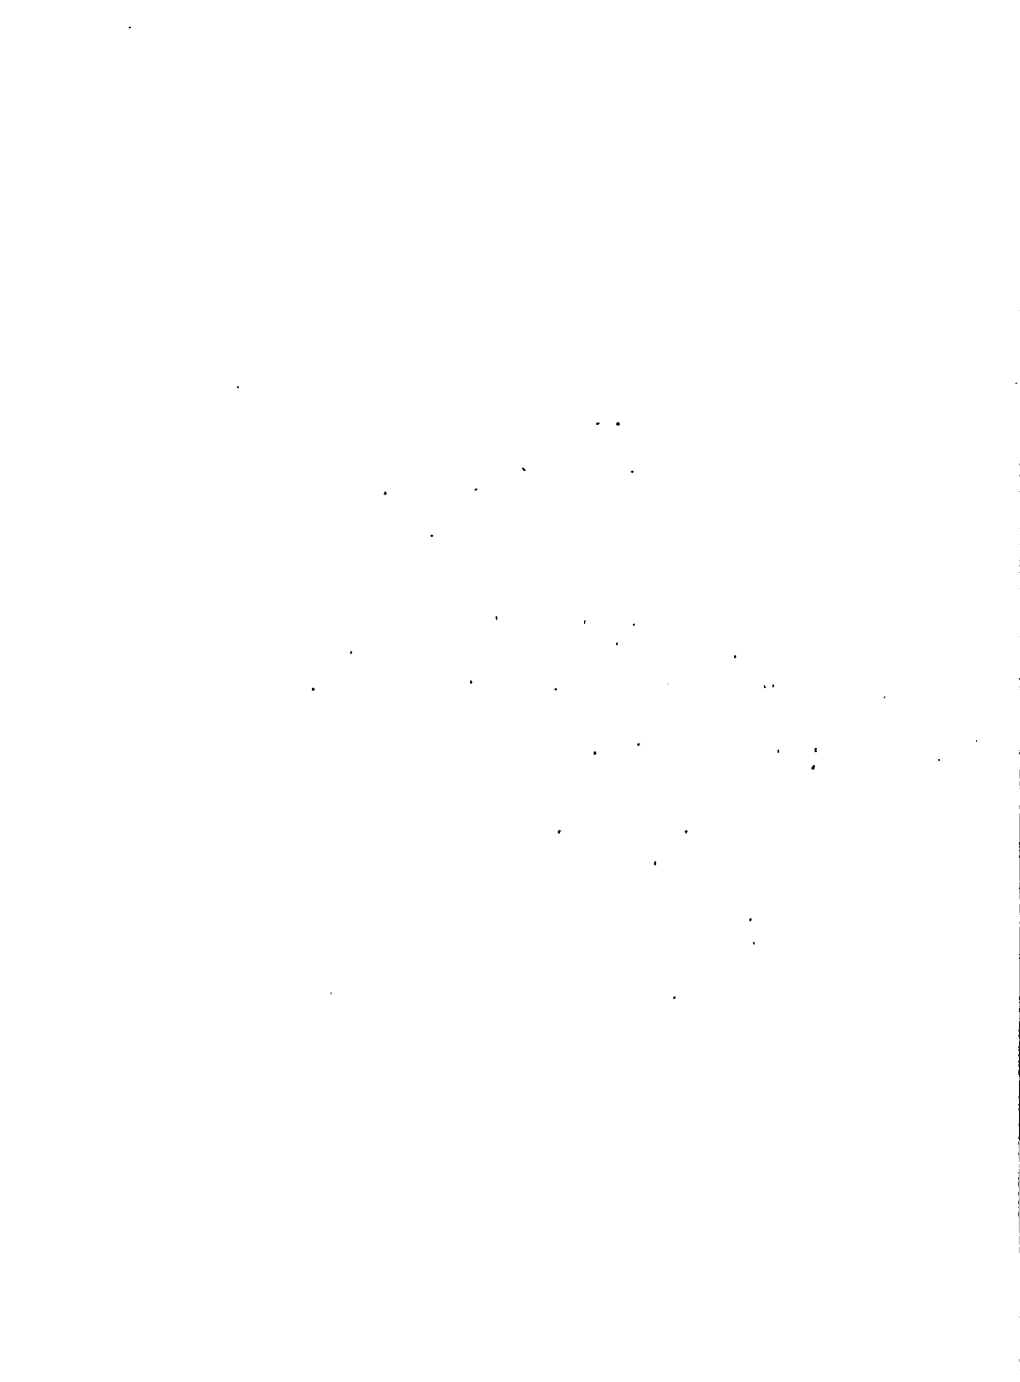

CHILDREN.

1. John, born 1627, in England.
2. Elizabeth, born 1629, " Married Lot Conant.
3. Martha, born 1632, "
4. Nathaniel, born 1636, in Hingham, Mass
5. Samuel², born 1639, in Marblehead. He married Sarah Maverick. In 1674, a householder.
6. Josiah, born 1640; killed by lightning at sea.

I received the following note and extracts:

EMMANUEL COLLEGE, Aug. 5, 1895.

Dear Sir:—The only information I can find about your ancestor, the Rev. William Walton, is that he entered this college on the 18th day of February, 1617 or '18. There is no information as to his age or county. Yours sincerely,

J. B. PEACE, Bursar.

"Sarah Maverick, daughter of Elias and Anne (Harris) Maverick, and niece of Moses Maverick of Marblehead, married Samuel Walton of Marblehead, born June 5, 1639. The date of the marriage is not known, though he is recorded as a householder in Marblehead in 1674.

"Samuel Walton was the third son of the Rev. William and Elizabeth Walton.

"Rev. William Walton was a native of Seaton, Devonshire, and was educated at Emmanuel College, Cambridge, but came to New England in 1635, settling in Hingham, but removing to Marblehead in 1639, where he was the minister of the town till his death in 1668.

"So far as known, Samuel and Sarah (Maverick) Walton had three children—Samuel, John and Elizabeth.

"The daughter married Jonathan Townsend, of Rumney Marsh. The latter died in middle life, and Samuel Walton assisted his daughter in administering on the estate.

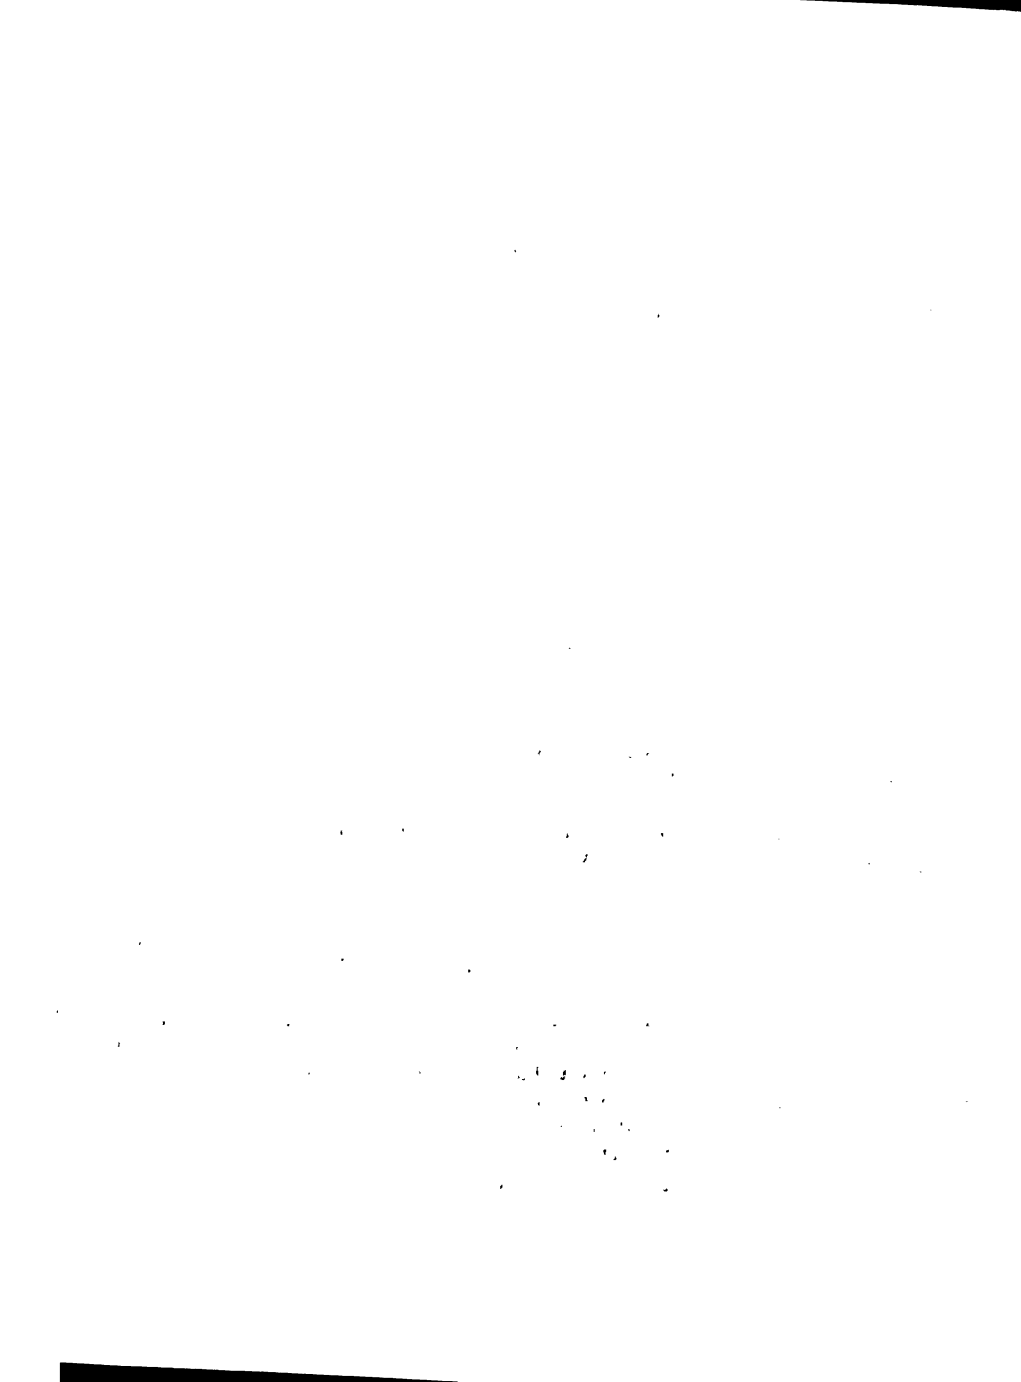

"In 1707, Nathaniel Walton, brother of Samuel, in his will bequeathed £5 each to his brother, Samuel Walton, and his two sons, Samuel and John, and they receipted for it in 1712.

64. AMOS C. HOPKINSON is a descendant of Michael Hopkinson, who came to America from England in 1632 and moved to Rowley, Mass., in 1640; also a great-grand-son of Jonathan Hopkinson, who was a private or non-commissioned officer in the New Hampshire line during the Revolutionary war; a grand-son of Jonathan Hopkinson, who moved from Farmington, Maine, to Hamilton County, Ohio, in 1818; a son of Francis Hopkinson, who was born in Farmington, Maine, Feb. 26, 1816, and died April 23, 1883, at Muscatine, Iowa.

Amos C. Hopkinson is a descendant, on his mother's side, of Peter Tufts, who emigrated to America in 1638, and who laid out and named the town of Mauldin, Mass. Francis Tufts, one of the descendants of Peter Tufts, was a pioneer settler in the State of Maine, in 1775. He was a farmer, and, it is said, cut the first English hay raised in the vicinity of Farmington, Maine. He also built the first mill at that place. Francis Tufts, together with Samuel Butterfield and Drummer Sewall, of Bath, concluded a deal in 1790, which made Francis Tufts one of the three proprietors of the township of Farmington, Maine.

In looking over the History of Wakefield, Reading and North Reading, published in 1874 by Lilley Eaton, I find the names of several Waltons that are undoubtedly descendants of the Rev. William Walton¹, that I have not connected directly with either branch, such as—

Timothy Goodwin, who married Sarah, widow of Captain Cornelius Walton;

Elizabeth Greene, born 1718; married in 1741, Jonathan Walton;

Benjamin Smith, son of Francis and Ruth, born 1692; married, 1824, Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas and Sarah (Walton) Burnap; died 1781. (Sarah Walton was probably daughter of Samuel, brother of John Walton³, born 1807.) Their children were: Elizabeth, born 1728; Ebenezer, born 1730; Elias, born 1731; was minister in Middletown, 1791; died 1792.

On page 140 of the History, Hannah Walton was a member of Lynnfield Church in 1721.

Page 160: In 1769, the first Young Men's Christian Association was formed in Reading, Mass. The names of John Walton³, Jonathan Walton; Amos Walton and Benjamin Walton, appear. In 1768, John Walton and Andrew Beard (carpenters) were added to the building committee of the church. John Walton and Oliver Swain got pew 21; John Walton got pew 30.

Page 174: John Walton was a committee to look after the chartered rights, and reported July 11, 1774.

Page 181: John Walton appears to have been chairman on the committee of correspondence, June 22, 1775.

Page 192: In 1770, John Walton, of Cambridge, graduated at Harvard College. In 1791, became a physician in Pepperell, where he practiced for sixty years. He was a relative of the Reading Waltons. He died in 1862, aged 92. He was deacon of the church, and was much respected. It was said that he never held a political office.

Page 199: Captain Walton is credited with 13 lbs., 10 shillings and 5 pence, for the support of Rev. Caleb Prentiss in 1780.

Page 352: The first scandal I have found among the Waltons, was at Timothy Bryant's funeral. One of the bearers, Benjamin Walton, became intoxicated while carrying the body to the grave, stumbled and fell, and the coffin came to the ground and burst open. This was previous to 1803, when alcoholic liquor was one of the essentials at a funeral.

Page 355: Paul Sweetser, Sr., born 1743; married Elizabeth, daughter of Ebenezer and Hepzebeth Smith, widow of

He was a man of intelligence and integrity, and was "selectman." He died in 1860. His widow moved to Lawrence; died in 1868. Their children were: 1. James Coleman Wheelock Walton, born 1819; married in 1843, Mary Cowdery, and lived in Wakefield. 2. Geo. Augustus Walton, born 1822; married and moved to Lawrence. Was principal of the High School there, was alderman, author of a text book on arithmetic, and taught in the Wakefield Schools. 3. Daniel Gould Walton, born in 1828; married E. Janet Aborn and lived in Wakefield. 4. Josiah Walton, born 1828; died 1838.

Daniel Gould Walton, born 1769; married, 1800, Rebecca, daughter of Timothy Walton⁸⁰; died, 1839, aged 70; no children.

Samuel Peters, son of Benjamin Peters, married in 1791, Elizabeth, daughter of Timothy and Lydia Walton, of Reading and Lynnfield. Their children were: Samuel, Benjamin and Timothy; Elizabeth, born 1801, married Joel Parker; Lydia, married Nathan Slocum; Naomi, who married Peter Tucker.

Harrison Gray Otis Hawkes, (son of Adam Hawkes,) born 1817; married, 1840, Mary Ann Walton and removed to New Hampshire.

Deacon Brown Emerson, son of Jacob Emerson, born 1737; entered Harvard College, 1756; married Margaret⁸⁰, (widow of Dr. Oliver Swain⁸¹), daughter of John Walton.

In 1874, among the officers of the Cemetery Corporation, appears the names of Oliver Walton, B. F. Walton, and Jonathan Walton.

WAR OF THE REBELLION.

Samuel L. Walton, of South Reading, son of Amos L. and Susan, born 1842; enlisted in 1861 for three years in Co. I, Eleventh Regiment.

Augustus Walton, of South Reading, son of Leonard and Nancy, was born in 1832; enlisted for three years in the Nineteenth Regiment; discharged and re-enlisted in the Eleventh Battery, George K. Walton, of South Reading, son of Joshua and Harriet, born 1843; enlisted in 1862, in the Sixteenth Massachusetts Battery.

Solon Walton, of South Reading, born 1830, enlisted for three years in Co. E, First Mass. Cavalry; was corporal and orderly sergeant.

Oliver Walton, of South Reading, son of John and Sarah, born 1837, enlisted in 1862 for nine months in Co. E, Fiftieth Massachusetts Regiment.

Frank O. Walton, of South Reading, son of Oliver and Sarah, born 1840; enlisted in 1864 in Co. E, Sixteenth Regiment—transferred in 1864 to Eleventh Mass. Battallion.

Of the list of men called Aug. 18, 1864, to fill quota, E. H. Walton paid $30.00, James Duncce Walton paid $50.00, James C. Walton, Oliver Walton, Samuel L. Walton, each paid $75.00, to secure men to fill the call. [This was a very common occurrence all over the Northern States. I paid $100.00 myself.—J. P. W.]

JOSIAH WALTON⁵.

Josiah Walton⁵, born in Reading, Mass., 1736, moved to New Ipswich, N. H., in 1763, and to Temple Hill in 1797.

On page 18 of History of New Ipswich, we find the following among the memoranda of Judge Champrey for the remarkable state of the weather:

"For the only continuous journal we are indebted to Josiah Walton⁵, who may be regarded as the 'Analist of the Town,' to whose private notes we are indebted for much of our Revolutionary History and almost entirely for all we know of the 'History of the Church' for forty or fifty years. We have a series of memoranda extending from 1777-1817 (forty years), in which without a thermometer or barometer, he contrived by certain rural phenomena, to give a general idea of the climatic character of each year."

Here followed several pages of the record which embraced the time of commencing haying, early and late springs, &c.
Entries like the following occur: "1785, Apr. 22, there was sledding over the fences." "In 1804 it was said that the snow had been five feet deep." About every year is mentioned by itself and some general comment made upon it.

Then follows Josiah Walton's⁵ Revolutionary War record, whose name appears on the pay-roll of Captain Ezra Town's Company in Col. James Reed's Regiment to Aug. 1st, 1775. This regiment and company were engaged at Bunker Hill. The History says, "Capt. Town's Co. came off in good order, although exposed to heavy firing." At this time Josiah Walton received a wound in the shoulder and neck which was supposed to be mortal, but being assisted from the field by his comrades, he was carried to camp and finally reached Reading, and after much suffering, he was again able to join his company.

Page 78: In 1778, at the annual town meeting, the following persons were chosen the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection and Safety: Josiah Brown, James Chandler, Benjamin Gibbons, Thos. Brown and Josiah Walton⁵.

Page 96: On the pay-roll, procured from the State House in Concord, N. H., of Capt. Stephen Parker's Co. in Col. Moses Nichols' Reg't, Gen. Stark's Brigade of N. H. Militia, that marched from New Ipswich and joined the Continental Army under Gen. Gates at Stillwater, Josiah Walton⁵ was fifth on the roll of privates.

Page 146: Josiah Walton's name appears as one of the signers to a protest to His Excellency, John Wentworth, against locating the church, asking His Excellency to intercede. The church was built.

Page 150 disposes of the old meeting-house. It was sold to Josiah Walton⁵, to be converted into a horse-shed. The Academy scholars undertook to overthrow it, and were partially successful. They were detected and compelled to see that it was made good. In doing so it fell down and the culprits had to pay twenty shillings each to rebuild it.

Then follows an account of the affair as given in Mr. Walton's Journal, Aug. 28, 1789: "Our house assaulted by a large number of scholars, and nearly thrown down, Sept. 1st. We requested the scholars to meet us at Capt. Fletcher's for settlement. John Preston, Esq., and Chas. Barrett, Esq., met us with a large number of scholars. After considerable conversation the following agreement was come to: On the part of the scholars, the damage done should be made good. Said Preston and Barrett promise on the part of the scholars, said house should be made as good as it was before it was damaged by said scholars." Then followed the contract and account of moving and righting, with the owners' names. It was divided between Josiah Walton and twelve others. They were dwellers in a distant part of the town, and bought and fitted up the old church for a horse-shed, to be used while attending meeting.

On page 155 is a description of the new meeting house recently built (1792). Mr. Walton occupied a place in the west gallery. In 1792 a proposition to raise money for a stove was negatived. (Up to this time the New England Church was not heated by any artificial heat. The women sometimes had what they called a foot stove—a pan of live coals in a wooden frame on which they held their feet. The men had nothing.

On page 172 appears the Ecclesiastical History of the Church, and the historian remarks: "The records of the church, during the fifty years of Rev. Mr. Farrar's ministry were recorded on a single sheet of paper, and were it not for some private records, especially those of Josiah Walton, we should have been left almost totally ignorant of the whole period."

On page 173 Rev. Mr. Lee describes a revival that occurred in 1786, from which we take the following notes: "At these conference meetings persons would be so distressed that they would arise and say, 'What can I do to be saved?' This was especially so at the house of Mr. Josiah Walton, where the distress of many was exceedingly great, and several were converted during the services."

Page 238 contains the vital statistics, and says: "From 1780 to 1820 we are entirely indebted to the private record of Josiah Walton. Up to the time of his removal to Temple, about 1797, it is probably complete, and it corresponds afterwards with the proper rates of mortality, and shows that he kept it with a great degree of accuracy up to the time of eighty-five years of age—a period of about forty years.

Page 438: "Mr. Josiah Walton was a very firm and energetic character, and did more for his country than many men of more pretensions. At the age of nineteen, during the old French war, he joined a company that went from his native town, Reading, Mass., to Lake George, and was in the severe battle that took place on Sept. 4, 1755, where he was severely wounded, and returned home by water. He came to the town of New Ipswich in 1763, and settled on Flat Mountain, when that part of the town was all a wilderness. At the commencement of the Revolutionary war, he was a strong whig, and did duty through the war. He was a member of Capt. Town's company at the battle of Bunker Hill, where he received a severe wound in the neck, and was with difficulty carried from the field by his comrades. However, he recovered so as to take the field again, and was present at the battle of Bennington."

The family tradition, as I have heard it, which I think is very nearly correct, is, that he fell at the Bunker Hill fight with his head down hill. His neighbors who were in the company with him thought he was mortally wounded, but turned his head up hill, took his gun and other effects, and sent them to New Ipswich with the word that he was dying on the battle field. After a short period, Josiah, feeling better, managed to get off from the field and into a cart that took him to the camp and later to Reading, his former home. From here he sent word to his wife at New Ipswich to come and take care of him, which she did. I was five years old when he died. I have a dim recollection of seeing him. His gun is in possession of his grand-son, James Harvey Walton³³, in Temple, N. H.—[J. P. W.,

The historian further remarks: "To this venerable and persevering man, we are indebted for many historical facts that have been of much use in compiling this work, (History of New Ipswich.) He kept a journal of his adventures in his first company, with all the names of the members, parts of which have been published. After he removed to this town he continued it. Among his chronicles are a list of the deaths from 1780 to 1820, and of the additions to the church, with remarks on the weather (record) and various other matters."

About 1822 he removed to Temple, N. H.

Page 150: Voted to have school kept at Mr. Walton's. This was likely Josiah Walton⁶, and quite likely his son Amos Walton⁷ attended that school.

Page 193: Josiah Walton, Jr.⁶, served as selectman in 1821-'22, and tythingman in 1822.

Page 225: Josiah Walton⁶, moved from New Ipswich to Temple in '95-'96. He figured in the old French war and in the Revolutionary war,

His grand-son, J. W. Walton¹⁷, a man whose memory of dates is not less extraordinary than the vitality of his family, made us the following narration:

While the army was on a forced march in the vicinity of Lake George, they were informed by a friendly Indian that a large body of French and Indians were in the woods ahead. They accordingly encamped for the night and after reveille next morning a party of three or four hundred (Mr. Walton among them) volunteered to act as advance scouts upon the enemy. They had proceeded about three miles when they suddenly found themselves within the half moon position of the identical foe they were in search of, and only by a precipitate retreat saved themselves from being entirely surrounded. As it was, fully a hundred were killed and scalped by the Indians, who followed on each side to cut them off. Mr. Walton reached camp with a perforated hat, leg and knapsack, a bullet having lodged in a hard biscuit.

As a revolutionary soldier, Mr. Walton was active at Bunker Hill and in camp, although sick at the battle of Bennington.

Deacon Brown, a near neighbor of Mr. Walton, happened to be at Concord on the morning of the memorable 19th of April, 1775. Bestriding his "little black mare," he rode post haste to New Ipswich and arrived there about noon, having spread the news all along the way. Mr. Walton hurriedly put off with his gun to Concord. Nobody at Concord. He pushed on to Cambridge, enlisted, and at Bunker Hill in the heat of the battle he was wounded in the neck and shoulder. Deacon Brown and Mr. Williams, his neighbors, took his gun and other effects away. He afterwards followed on by the aid of a horse cart to camp, where his wounds were dressed, and his father, Josiah Walton⁴, yet living in Reading, came for him and took him home.

We would not devote so much space to any one man if the historians of New Ipswich and Temple had not devoted more pages to Josiah Walton⁵ and his Record than they have to any other man in their histories.—J. P. W.

The Waltons have generally been farmers, and have been content to remain so. Josiah Walton⁶ appears to have made a wider mark in history than many of the others of his time. His sons, Josiah and James, were both farmers. Amos Walton⁷, seems to have departed a little by educating himself for a school teacher. He attended the New Ipswich Academy, although following school teaching but a short time. He inherited some of his grand-father's traits, with which he endowed his descendants—that of gathering and preserving statistics. In 1825 Amos purchased the swamp mill at the Wilder Village, in New Ipswich. He married Miss Eunice Oakes, and commenced work at the saw mill. I have in my possession his daily memorandum, with entries made every day. He would make an entry about the weather the first thing. On Jan. 18th, 1825, is the following: "Weather fair. Got married. Moved to the mill." During the time he lived at the mill, some two or more years, some weather record occurred every day. This mill was a good investment, but to avoid a law suit, he sold it and bought another in Antrim, where he moved in 1827 or '28, remaining there until 1830, when he sold his mill and moved to Lowell, Mass., and worked in the machine shops. In the autumn of 1837 he came west, stopping a short time at St. Louis, before starting up the river. He landed at Geneva, three miles above Muscatine, on the 20th day of November, 1837. His family consisted of wife and two sons. Accompanied by his brother, Asa Walton, they arrived at Geneva on the 10th day of June, 1838. The oldest son, Josiah P. Walton⁸, the compiler of this book, lives at Muscatine—November, 1897.

JOSIAH PROCTOR WALTON.

JOSIAH PROCTOR WALTON⁸.

Josiah Proctor Walton⁸ was born in New Ipswich, N. H., on Feb. 26, 1826. At the age of one and a half years he was moved to Antrim, and at the age of four to Lowell, Mass. In 1858 he moved to Iowa, then "Black Hawk Purchase of Wisconsin Territory." In the spring of 1841, Amos Walton⁷ died, leaving his widow and two children to shift for themselves as best they could. The younger son eventually settled on a farm on Muscatine Island. He for many years filled the office of Justice of the Peace in Port Louisa township. His mother, Eunice Walton¹⁶, lived with him until her death on Jan. 25, 1880. John Warren Walton¹⁷ died March 11, 1882. The older brother, Josiah Proctor Walton⁸, the compiler of this book, now lives in Muscatine—November, 1867. As a sketch of his biography, we will refer the reader to the Muscatine Journal of May 22, 1886:

"J. P. Walton was born in the town of New Ipswich, N. H., Feb. 26, 1826. He left his native place at so early an age that it is scarcely to be mentioned except as a birth spot, but it is well to remember that from out among those granite hills of New Hampshire has come as peculiar and stalwart a type of American character as any of the thirteen colonial colonies has produced. All her children carry with them an indelible impress of a State which grows the hardy pine out of granite boulders. A good many people, unacquainted with the peculiar quality of that New Hampshire granite have attempted at times to remodel the sentiments, opinions and convictions of Mr. Walton to subserve their own idea of the fitness of things, but these endeavors have only resulted in causing their promoters to lose confidence in themselves.

"On the 10th of June, 1838, when Josiah was twelve years of age, he landed with his parents on the west bank of the Mississippi, in this county, at Geneva, a promising settlement three miles above Muscatine, and whose site is now only marked by the Col. Hare school house. This territory was then a part of Wisconsin. After the Waltons had built their cabin, Geneva boasted of four dwellings, a store and a mill. Amos Walton, his father, was appointed postmaster of Geneva and when he died, a few years later, the responsibilities of the office fell upon our young hero when he could not have been more than sixteen, for he moved with his mother to Muscatine Island in 1842. At this precocious age, while still living at Geneva, young Josiah ran the first vegetable and milk wagon into Muscatine. Since 1848 he has been a continuous resident of this city. His genius for adaptability soon taught him that what a new country needed most was carpenters, and he became one off-hand, and went to work, just as he would have opened a lawyer or doctor's office, or gone to preaching, if the inclination had struck him that way. So he spent this last part of his boyhood building houses here and there as he could find a job. It was at the age of twenty-two, in 1848, that he was working at his 'trade' for J. J. Hoopes at thirteen dollars a month, and took half his pay in store orders, and the other half in the lot now so well known as Evergreen Nook, his present residence. There are a good many trade unions now contending that eight hours constitute the only reasonable time for a day's wages; but young Walton was only too glad to take his thirteen dollars monthly in store goods and an Eighth street lot, the only kind of currency at that period and work fifteen hours a day. The lot cost him fifty dollars or a little over four months' hard service. Three years later in 1851, his New Hampshire wit 'caught on' to the special vocation which has led to his competency and given him celebrity throughout the State. In this year a gentleman from St. Louis brought his apparatus here for raising the bridge over Cedar river. Young Walton saw the possibilities in the tackle of that apparatus and purchased it, and in this transaction he got possession of that magic lever, by which houses and blocks of masonry all over the State have been moved to new sites or lifted to new foundations, and which has also raised its possessor to an eminence as a mechanic second to none in Iowa.

"In 1851, too, he built the house which, with some additions, has been his home for forty-six years. In 1856 he gave to Muscatine the first conservatory in the city, and to which so many homes have owed their floral taste and beauty, and so many public occasions, joyous and sad, their fairest ornaments and sweetest memorials.

"The following year he journeyed to Clayville, New York, where, on the 2d of June, he celebrated his nuptials with Miss Mary Elizabeth Barrows, whose bridal welcome was one of the notable social events in Muscatine. To his business as carpenter and house mover, he early added the profession of architect. The elegant Gothic cottage of Dr. James Weed, the capacious farm house (largest in the State, now used for an orphan's home,) of Mr. Benj. Hershey, the improvements of Trinity church, and the High School building (recently destroyed by fire), are samples of his architecture. But it is to his special attention to raising and moving large buildings of both brick and wood, that he owes his principal reputation. He is undoubtedly the best prepared and most successful operator in this line in the State. There is hardly a place in Iowa, within a radius of a hundred miles, where he has not achieved some notable triumph in this most critical work.

"Another and most important pursuit followed by him, more as a gratification to his partiality for natural science than for its emoluments, have been his meteorological observations and record as volunteer correspondent of the U. S. Signal Service bureau. This weather record involves the most careful observations for the past fifty-nine years, the first twenty-one of which were made and recorded by Hon. T. S. Parvin, now of Cedar Rapids, since continued by Mr. Walton, and which, beyond dispute, constitutes the oldest continuous weather record in the valley of the Mississippi.

"Mr. Walton has won corresponding distinction in other walks of life. He has served in nearly all the offices of the different Masonic bodies of which he has been a member for forty-six years. He was one of the charter members of the Muscatine Academy of Science, of which society he is an ex-president and present treasurer. He was the supervisor of the Muscatine Island levee.

"Somewhere along the line of that Puritan ancestry, there must have been an infusion of Cavalier blood to account for Mr. Walton's membership of Trinity Episcopal church. But there he is, and has been since 1854, having been a novitiate of the first class confirmed by Bishop Lee in Iowa. For many years the superintendent of Trinity S. S., and as vestryman of the church, no other member of the Society has labored with more untiring zeal for its prosperity.

"In politics Mr. Walton was bred a whig and blossomed naturally into a republican, and there are very few to rank him in his enthusiastic and steadfast devotion to the honor of his party.

"In the same public spirited fashion he has expressed his interest in the success of our public school system, none laboring with more watchful attention to promote its welfare in all its relations to the public. He has just cause for this interest and pride in our schools. His three surviving children are graduates of the High School, and two of them are numbered with its most distinguished valedictorians, the third only escaping the same honor by 2-10ths of one per cent scholarship. These daughters, now married, are, Mrs. James Q. Beatty, Mrs. Amos C. Hopkinson, and Mrs. J. E. Hoopes. The mention of these young ladies will recall to many, another notable characteristic of their father, queenly shared by Mrs. Walton, so oft and elegantly expressed in the hospitality of Evergreen Nook. No home in Muscatine has kept a more constant and generous open house, or dispensed a more liberal and charming entertainment at its receptions.

"As a living encyclopædia of Muscatine events from its earliest history, there are but one or two if any, to equal, none to surpass Mr. Walton. His word is sufficient to settle any dispute referring to events of the last forty-four years, for it is known that his memory is stored with all necessary corroborative testimony. He stands, however, with those intimately appreciating his career, most distinguished for the extraordinary and almost inexplicable manner, in which as a man wholly self-educated he has attained to his wonderfully exact information in mechanics, mathematics and natural science, in the mastery of which knowledge the advantages of school education have been held absolutely indispensable, and then most difficult of acquirement. In this particular, Muscatine may well challenge this State to produce the equal of Mr. J. P. Walton."

During the war of the Rebellion, Mr. J. P. Walton was one of the enrolling officers of his township for military purposes, and was also State Commissioner appointed by the Governor to go to the front and take the vote of the Thirty-Seventh Regiment of Iowa Volunteers, which he did in 1864, while they were doing guard duty at the old prison in Alton, Ills. He is a member of the Iowa Society of the Sons of the Revolution, and is their historian—and has recently been elected President of the Old Settlers' Society for the fifteenth consecutive time.

MRS. MARY ELIZABETH BARROWS WALTON¹⁴, wife of J. P. Walton⁸, was born in Franklin, Oneida county, N. Y., on June 13th, 1834. She graduated at the Clinton Liberal Institute on April 10, 1854; came to Muscatine as an assistant school teacher for D. Franklin Wells, one of the early State Superintendents. After teaching in Muscatine and other places, she returned to New York; was married on June 2, 1857, to J. P. Walton, and returned to Muscatine to preside over the home (Evergreen Nook), their home for the past forty years.

PROCTOR FAMILY RECORDS.

89. ROBERT PROCTOR was a freeman in the town of Concord, Mass., May 10, 1643. He married Jane Hildreth in December, 1645, and moved to Chelmsford, Mass. He was one of the twenty-five to whom a grant of land was given. He died April 28, 1697.

CHILDREN.

the 1990s, the number of people in the world who are under 15 years of age is expected to increase from 1.1 billion to 1.5 billion.

As the world's population grows, the demand for food and other resources will increase. This will put pressure on the environment and on the world's food supply. It is important that we find ways to meet this demand without harming the environment or the world's food supply. One way to do this is by using sustainable agriculture. Sustainable agriculture is a way of farming that uses natural resources in a way that will not harm them for future generations. It uses techniques such as crop rotation, which helps to keep the soil healthy and fertile, and using natural pest control methods instead of pesticides.

Another way to meet the demand for food and other resources is by using renewable resources. Renewable resources are resources that can be replenished naturally. Examples of renewable resources are solar energy, wind energy, and water. Using renewable resources can help to reduce the amount of fossil fuels we use, which can help to reduce the amount of greenhouse gases we emit. This can help to slow down climate change, which is a major threat to the world's food supply and the environment.

Finally, we can meet the demand for food and other resources by using resources more efficiently. This means using less of the resources we need to produce food and other goods. For example, we can use less water by using water-saving devices in our homes and businesses. We can also use less land by growing crops more efficiently. By using resources more efficiently, we can help to reduce the amount of resources we need to produce food and other goods, which can help to reduce the pressure on the environment and the world's food supply.

There are many other ways to meet the demand for food and other resources. We need to find ways to use resources in a way that will not harm the environment or the world's food supply. We need to find ways to use resources more efficiently. We need to find ways to use renewable resources. We need to find ways to use sustainable agriculture. We need to find ways to meet the demand for food and other resources without harming the environment or the world's food supply.

It is important that we find ways to meet the demand for food and other resources without harming the environment or the world's food supply. We need to find ways to use resources in a way that will not harm the environment or the world's food supply. We need to find ways to use resources more efficiently. ADDITIONS AND CORRECTIONS.

I find by consulting the New England Genealogical Register of 1855, page 57, that George Walton was born in England in 1615 or 1616; signed the Exeter Combination in 1629; was at Dover in 1648; settled at Great Island (now New Castle, N. H.) within a few years, and died there, leaving a family of sons and daughters.

It is possible that he may have been a relative of the Rev. William Walton¹, although I have no proof of it. I have not heard of any other Walton families in early New England.

The text provides guidelines for financial management, such as budgeting, monitoring expenses, and seeking funding opportunities. It also mentions the importance of maintaining accurate financial records and the role of leadership in this process.

10. The tenth part of the document discusses the importance of strategic planning. It emphasizes that organizations must have a clear vision and strategy to guide their actions. The text provides guidelines for strategic planning, such as defining the organization's mission and vision, identifying key strategic areas, and developing a strategic plan. It also mentions the importance of reviewing and updating the strategic plan regularly and the role of leadership in this process.

LETTER FROM EBEN PUTNAM.

We recently received the following from Eben Putnam, editor and publisher of "Putnam's Monthly Historical Magazine," at Salem, Mass.:

DANVERS, MASS., Dec. 27, 1897.

Dear Sir: Yours at hand; and as it opened an interesting question, I sat down and solved it.

First, my ancestor, Elias Maverick, in his will 19th Oct., 1681, proved 6th Nov., 1684, named among his children, daughter Sarah Walton.

Elias Maverick was admitted to church, Charleston, Dec. 9, 1632 or '33; married Anna, daughter of Moses Harris. She died at Reading, Sept. 7, 1697, aged 84; gravestone at Reading. The daughter, Sarah, was born, Dec. 20, 1640 or '41. Elias was without much doubt a brother of Samuel, the Royal Commissioner of 1664. In Cartwright's "Memorial," 1660, is plainly stated that Maverick had a "mother and brothers" living in New England. Moses was, I presume, another brother, and perhaps an antipos. The latter was associated with Samuel in the settlement at York, Me., 1631.

The father of these men appears without a reasonable doubt to be Rev. John, who came with the Dorchester Company in 1630.

Rev. John died Feb. 5, 1635 or '36, aged about 60—(Winthrop). Now a John Mayerick was matriculated at Oxford, Oct. 24, 1595, aged 18, of Devonshire, and B. A. July 8, 1599, M. A. July 7, 1603.

This John married at Islington, Devonshire, Oct. 28, 1600, Mary Gye (i. e. Guy). He was instituted at Beaworthy, Devon, Aug. 30, 1615, and his successor, appointed March 24, 1629, according to Roger Clapp.

Rev. John Maverick, this pastor at Dorchester, was formerly living about 40 miles from Plymouth, and Beavorthy is 22 miles W. N. W. of Exeter. You may figure out the identification of the rector and the Reverend John of New England, easily. As Samuel was born, according to his own statement, in 1602, and came to New England 1625 or '24, before his father left his living, it is easy to see that the Puritan tenets would not be apt to have captured his mind. This accounts for the improbability which Savage finds in making Rev. John the father of Samuel.

Samuel first settled at Winnisimmet, now Chelsea, in 1624 or '25, and then in 1630 Elias settled. Samuel sold his house there in 1634, and had, about 1630, '32 or '33, settled on Noddle's Island.

Samuel married Amias (Colle), widow of David Thomas, who died about 1626 or '27, and who had been at Piscatiqua, and was the leader of the settlement there, being a patentee. This may account for Samuel Maverick's interest at York.

EBEN PUTNAM.

Moses Maverick, of Marblehead (see page 8), married a daughter of Isaac Allerton, of the Mayflower notoriety.

The Maverick line to the Waltons will be—

1. The Reverend John Maverick, born 1576 or '77.
2. Elias, admitted to church, Dec. 9. 1632 or '33.
3. Sarah, born Dec. 20, 1640 or '41, married Samuel Walton², 1674.
